RCI Breakfast Seminar – March 28th, 2017

The Education Committee recently held a breakfast seminar at The Brampton Golf Club where it was very well received with 60 people both members and non-members in attendance. The event was facilitated by Sean McCallum of the Education Committee and included two (2) educational presentations on two very interesting topics.

The first presentation was on the topic of Thermal Bridging and R Value and was presented by Peter Adams of Morrison Hershfield. This has been a rather hot topic over the past couple of years among manufacturers, consultants and architects. It was great to have Peter delve into this topic a little further and provide some understanding and incite too many of the attendees who may not have been aware of some of the issues.

The second presentation was on Hybrid Roof System Options in the Ontario Market and was presented by Ted Katsoris and Michael Saynarain, both of Morrison Hershfield. Hybrid roofs are becoming a little more common place and the Ontario market has certainly seen its share of Hybrid Roof installations. The decision behind choosing a hybrid system and some of the questions regarding their key components and concerns were thoughtfully discussed by both Ted and Michael.
